The Royal Mint in 1977

The Royal Mint produced during 1977 over 1,602 million coins at the factory in Llantrisant.

It arranged for the striking of some 505 million coins by sub-contractors working under Royal Mint supervision.

Of the total production of over 2,000 million coins, over 60% were struck on behalf of governments overseas.

Its 43 overseas customers included the Bahamas, Bahrain, Brunei, Ethiopia, The Gambia, Hong Kong, Iraq, Jamaica, Kuwait, Malawi, Morocco, New Zealand, Saudi Arabia, Sri Lanka, Tristan da Cunha, Tuvalu and Venezuela.

It minted coins for a number of countries participating in the Wildlife scheme.

It produced 115,236 medals during the year.

And on the strength of its work in 1976, it won the Queen's Award for Export Achievement for the third time.
Titus, Elagabalus, Brutus: should you buy them, sell them - or keep them?

As every collector knows, it's not just a question of profit or investment (though that's important). At Seaby we believe the right answer depends as much on your personal tastes and collecting ambitions as it does on current and future prices. And we'd be very pleased to advise you on your particular problems or interests.

We have departments covering every sector of coins, medals and decorations. You can ask to see the specialists in those departments (and they would be very happy to meet you) or you can browse around our book shop or just look through our coin display. You'll be very welcome – as a customer or as a visitor. But if you can't visit us at all, write for a copy of our monthly bulletin. And we'll send it to you – with compliments.
